b.3 Campus Recruitment Training Programs

Context:

There are currently fewer opportunities for entry-level candidates in the core technical occupations. Students to succeed with quality placements, they must develop the skills necessary to seize employment chances. Campus recruitment training prepares the candidates to top IT/Non-IT firms. College conduct various training courses on a variety of aptitude skills, including verbal ability (English) and soft skills like attitude, positive thinking, resume preparation, presentation skills, group discussion skills, and job interview skills. This training is provided by outside training organizations, industrial experts, and resource persons.
